STATSBORO GIRL DISTRICT CHAMP

Genevieve Guardia Wins District High School Girls' Essay Contest

The paper which follows was written by a Statesboro High School student, Genevieve Guardia, and won first prize for girls' essays in the recent contest conducted by the Georgia Power Company under the heading, "My Community: Today and Tomorrow." Miss Guardia represented the district at the state-wide district winners' banquet in Atlanta on the evening of June 7th. The paper is believed to be of interest to the readers of this paper, and especially to those who are acquainted with this young lady.

"MY COMMUNITY: TODAY AND TOMORROW."

To people who have not lived in Statesboro, it may seem that another town. But it is known and loved by more than five thousand citizens who call it "home."

Statesboro is located in Bulloch county, in southeast Georgia, about eight miles from the ocean. The sea breeze moderates the climate, the breezes help especially in making summer nights cool. Several years ago a letter was sent from the Chamber of Commerce of Statesboro, and "the pine-scented sea breeze" was listed as one of the advantages here.

We may always have the sea breeze, but we shall be obliged to stop bragging about the pine scent unless new trees are planted to take the place of those that are fast being cut down. The houses in our community vary in size, in quality and in style of architecture, but a person who moved to Statesboro said, "I see no real estate homes and no poor huts. I like a town that does not show great wealth and real poverty." The homes seem to make Statesboro a democratic place.

Some of the yards are very well kept, but some are not. Many vacant lots have grown up in weeds and have paper thrown upon them. The city has placed waste paper cans in the business section, but sometimes shoppers are forgetful and careless about using them. Statesboro is a market town for farmers. The prosperity of the merchants depends largely on the farmers, as most of the yearly income of Bulloch county is from agriculture. The town has large tobacco and livestock markets, a peanut plant, and a freezer locker plant that is one of the largest in the South.

Bulloch county is proud of its hospital and library. A new wing for the hospital is being constructed and funds have been raised to erect a new building to house our fine selection of library books. The educational advantages here are superior. There are excellent public schools for both white people and negroes. Georgia Teachers College is located in a suburb of Statesboro.

The town has two movie theatres, but besides going to shows there is not much recreation for young people. Just out of town there is a Skat-R-Bowl, run for personal profit. Little children play in two tiny parks without real playground equipment. Recreation for all ages of young people are badly needed.

Statesboro is a prosperous town—a growing town. Though we love it as it is now, we wish for improvements.

Statesboro recently began a radio station, which uses the Bulloch county slogan, "Where Nature Smiles." We are on the air; we want to broadcast our town—a town that will develop and improve in the future. The probability of employing a city manager is being considered; he could help expertly in guiding development and improvement along many lines.

An indication that Statesboro is growing is the fact that 104 houses were built in 1946. Other homes were improved; but according to the Regional Department of Commerce, over fifty houses are in need of repair. This community needs repairing. Probably war-time restrictions on materials delayed much of repair work, but certainly repairs on homes are needed in the immediate future.

The increase in the number of homes makes an enlargement of the sewerage system a necessity. The city recently voted bonds for extending the sewerage lines and for paving. The paving, too, is badly needed. Much of the old paving should be repaired; also, more streets should be paved.

Statesboro has a dumping place, but it is located so near the cemetery that it seems disrespectful to the dead. The town dump should be moved to a remote spot. Some people carelessly throw their yard cans and other trash that hold water and breed mosquitoes. A monthly inspection, directed by the health engineer, might remove this menace.

Camellias and azaleas grow well in this climate. It would be wonderful if more of these shrubs could be planted and Statesboro become noted for beautiful camellias and azaleas. Trees need to be planted; also shade trees to border the streets in beautiful Southern style.

If the appearance of our community is as attractive, tourists will be more apt to stop here. Better hotels, good restaurants, clean rest rooms, and courteous service are required to attract and satisfy tourists.

Since agriculture provides much of the income of Bulloch county, methods of farming are very important. Building the soil is one problem that certainly must be considered. Future Statesboro should have more processing plants to handle products grown on nearby farms.

Our community is largely without manufacturing enterprises. We should make efforts to secure these and also improve our transportation facilities needed for carrying the manufactured products.

Not only should better transportation for freight be provided, but also better transportation for our traveling public. We do not have passenger trains, and we certainly need them. The federal government recently sold Statesboro an airport; now we want to get on a commercial airline. A new bus station and improved bus schedule are other transportation needs.

One of our greatest needs is for a youth center. The most successful youth centers give not only chances for recreation, but also training in useful arts. Our youth center of tomorrow needs a full-time director to supervise recreation and to teach art and craft. Favorite projects might be mending broken objects and making small pieces of furniture for sale.

Parks containing playground equipment for little children, and a swimming pool and skating rink for older children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren of Mrs. W. S. Nesmith honoring her seventy-second birthday. Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Martin attended the graduation exercises of their daughter, Uldine, who graduated from the University of Georgia with a bachelor of arts degree. While in Athens they were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Myers.

Mrs. J. S. Nesmith was the honoree at a lovely birthday dinner at her home here Sunday. It being her seventy-ninth birthday. The occasion was planned by her children and grandchildren. Many gifts were presented and good wishes for many more birth days. All ten of her children were present. Mrs. J. Lawson Anderson, H. Watson Nesmith, L. Morgan Nesmith, J. Lehman Nesmith, E. Archie Nesmith, Mrs. Cohen Lanier, Mrs. Donald Martin and Mrs. J. P. Mobley. Mrs. Nesmith has forty-three grandchildren and thirty-seven great-grandchildren.

PERFECT RECORD
Miss Betty Jean DeLoach, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. DeLoach Jr., Route 1, Brooklet, graduated from Nevils High School June 3, at which time she received a medal for having not missed a day from school. Miss DeLoach is seventeen years of age, and has the distinction of having attended Nevils High School for twelve years with a perfect attendance record. Miss DeLoach attended Draughton's Business College June 16, where she hopes to make a perfect attendance.

YOUTH FELLOWSHIP
The Nevils Youth Fellowship met Sunday night at 8 o'clock. A very interesting program was presented as follows: Solo, "An Evening Prayer," Melva Cressay; Arminia Burnsed read the Scriptures; Mrs. Marcus D. May led in a very interesting discussion the main thought for which was John 3:16. The meeting was turned over to the president for the business session, after which the group was dismissed by the Fellowship benediction. Our Youth Fellowship will meet the first Sunday night, July 28th, and all are cordially invited to attend. ARMINIA BURNSSED, Publicity Chairman.

Klan Has Capitulated; Charter Is Dissolved
In a surprise move last Friday, the Ku Klux Klan surrendered its corporate charter, thus avoiding the court battle promised it by Attorney General Eugene Cook who, on behalf of Georgia, sought a revocation of the document. Fulton county superior court Judge Bond Almond issued an order compelling the hooded order's petition to have its charter dissolved and credited the state with a victory in its suit. Accepting congratulations from well-wishers, Cook had but one comment: "The Columbians next."

Why Open Sessions?

NOT BECAUSE we have any special friendships for any members of the board of regents, but because we trust them, and are impelled to disagree with those newspapers in Georgia which are expressing dissatisfaction with the privacy of their executive sessions.

The educational system of Georgia, as it is embodied in the University system under direct management of the board of regents, is an important business institution. Its management involves more than dollars and cents—the preservation of harmony, the security of the system and the betterment of service to the people are the highest obligation of the board. As the directors of any large business institution are selected by stockholders with regard to their integrity and capacity to govern, so are the members of the board of regents charged with that high responsibility.

In the safe conduct of most affairs, private and public, there are inevitable phases which can well be left unpublicized. Directors of a banking institution are chosen by stockholders because of their assumed capacity to safely manage a bank's business. In order to hold an equitable balance, it may often be that private matters can be best left unexposed. To be sure, what a board of directors actually does, is the legitimate concern of every stockholder, but not always are the accompanying incidents by which that action was attained, best to be thrown open to public review.

Thus with the board of regents. The employment of personnel, and decisions finally reached, with regard to all matters affecting the system, belongs to the public, but it is not always wise that details by which these actions are arrived at should become matters of public comment.

We believe our board of regents should be accorded the right to conduct their affairs with such degree of privacy as to them seems best.

An Electrical Truth

THE WORDS which follow are not intended to be based upon any understanding of electricity, but strictly upon a doubt of a matter which is in some circles being accepted as a developed truth—the recently publicized lie detector.

Without serious attempt to deny the possibility of this device, we feel free to declare that we still have some misgivings as to the credibility of the device which can be attached to a man's chest and discern whether he is speaking truthfully or falsely.

As to this new much-touted device, we can recognize that it may be entirely free from the human attribute of suspicion or intuition (which are the same elements), but our limited understanding of electricity prevents us from blindly accepting the possibility that it can accurately discern the mental gradations of a human mind. We are more or less reconciled to the dependability of the radar, which correctly records the actions of invisible machines in flight; we admit the dependability of the stethoscope, which is used without fail to discern the measurements of men's interior anatomy; we are daily served by the mysterious power of a thermostat which regulates the coming and goings of electricity into the metal pot of our line-casting machine.

But this electrical lie-detector has us stumped. How shall it register between the emotions of guilt and innocence when a man is being grilled for his life? How shall it be sure whether the stirred emotions are the result of a guilty conscience or from a fear of being wrongfully convicted and put to death?

These questions easily arise in the mind of a layman. On a jury trying a man for his life, we'd want a witness who could be required to answer on large upon the facts about which he is testifying. We've seen the mechanical devices of men go awry because of a loose connection. They tell us that a reversal in connections will even make an electrical meter run in reverse. There is still the

WINGATE EXPECTS LARGE INCREASE

Foresees Promise of Over 75,000 Families Entering Farm Bureau This Year

H. L. Wingate, president of the Georgia Farm Bureau, predicted more than 75,000 farm families would be members of the Farm Bureau in this state before November 30.

Mr. Wingate spoke to some 800 delegates to the district meeting at Swainsboro Thursday. Bulloch county was represented by 55 members from most of the chapters in the county.

Judge J. L. Renfro, who shared speaking honors with Mr. Wingate, urged farmers to incorporate more livestock and close growing crops in their row crop farming program.

Mr. Renfro expressed the belief that this was essential to have a balanced program on any farm. He also urged that some of the money now available be used for things that would improve living standards on the farm to help keep boys and girls on the farm and to make for a more pleasant life in rural areas.

The delegates presented expressed the desire of enrolling more than 14,000 families from the First Congressional District this year. Bulloch county pledged 2,200 of these members. Screven county pledged 2,000.

Mr. Wingate also spoke of the National Guard has begun taking shape.

The national guard, he said, is doing all right with his assignment to reorganize and reactivate the Georgia National Guard.

Alpha A. Fowler Jr., of Douglasville, state adjutant general, has announced that the state is slightly behind in the reactivation of the National Guard recruiting this year.

In spite of several months' delay caused by the governor's dispute. In addition to the more than 1,000 officers and men in Georgia's air guard, some 1,800 have already signed up with the ground units. And some sixty more of these ground units remain to be activated.

"The Georgia National Guard," Gen. Fowler said, "even now in its present incomplete state has more officers than it had before the war."

Our ultimate goal is a strength of 12,000—nearly three times the strength of any previous Georgia National Guard authorized strength.

The 125 units in the air and ground National Guard units will be spread evenly throughout the state, he said.

Amputees Warned To File Claims for Cars

Veterans entitled to the gift of an automobile from Uncle Sam must make formal application this week without fail. C. Arthur Cheatham, Veterans Service director for Georgia, has issued a warning that the law requires eligible ex-servicemen to make their applications sufficiently before June 30 so that they may be checked by the Veterans Administration before that deadline.

To be eligible for a free automobile, a veteran must have lost one or both legs—or the use of them—at or above the ankle, and he must not now be on active service with the armed forces.

CIRCLES TO MEET

Methodist W.C.S.C. circles will meet Monday, June 23rd, at 4 p. m., at the home of Mrs. J. H. Marshall, Law School in Atlanta.

Addressing the graduating class of the latter institution, Mr. Cook deplored the lack of ethics of "some members of Georgia's bench" who openly played politics during the governorship crisis.

"Local custom cannot justify any such reprehensible conduct," he said. It is a violation of our code of ethics and repulsive to the public generally. It discredits the dignity of our courts and invites injustice in the administration of our laws."

Childhood Training Is Seen As Solution

Chairman Edward B. Everett, of the State Board of Pardons and Paroles, believes the "concentration on the high chair can take the emphasis off of the electric chair" in this state.

Addressing the Methodist Men's Club luncheon in Atlanta, Everett pointed out that Georgia has the record of leading the country in number of executions for capital crimes.

He pointed out that the record of capital crime commission is lowest in the six states which do not permit the death penalty—and highest in Georgia where executions are most frequent.

"Most crimes begin in youth," he said. "Concentration on the high chair can carry very well the emphasis off of the electric chair here."
